By WINIFRED HARPER COOLEY

It may be that better housekeepers, existed in the sense of harder workers. But red, roughened hands do not necessarily denote a contented spirit or lov-ing temper! We suspect that human though our tempers have different ma-terial to work on. The unselfish, affec-

Real Home-Makers HOME is where the heart is." How often we say it, yet how little we lit! Better a dinner of herbs where nner of herbs where love is than all the wealth of the Orient.

Many old - time folks decry the modern spirit of independence and frivolity and call it lawiessness.

They sigh for the They was ness.

They sigh for the spirit of phere, forbidding enthusiasm?

They sigh for the early days of ter. THERE are women who are excellent for them to have an original They sigh for the early days of terrible struggle, when men slaved at subduing the forests or protecting their homes from ensured rigors of mics, and women than the men endured rigors of the soft luxuries of modern steam-heated flats. These old-fashioned thinkers claim that home-making then was a matter of enthusiasm, and a serious principle.

The MERE are women who are excellent housekeepers, who yet are shocking providers of real peace and joy. Housekeepers, not home-makers. You know the type of woman who always throws cold water. She may be technically a model housekeeper and a "good wife and mother." But her husband and children, her relatives and the visitors who come, at once teet all joyous spontancity fade and perish.

The house may be nent and clean, but it has no "atmosphere." There is no open fire, no book or magazine or grow-point and the providers of real peace and joy. Housekeepers, not home-makers. You know the type of woman who always throws cold water. She may be technically a model housekeeper and a "good wife and mother." But her husband and children, her relatives and the visitors who come, at once teet all joyous spontancity fade and perish.

The house may be near and clean, but it has no "atmosphere." There is no open fire, no book or magazine or grow-point and the providers of real peace and joy. Housekeepers, not home-makers. You know the type of woman who always throws cold water. She may be technically a model housekeeper and a "good wife and mother." But her husband and children, her relatives and the visitors who come, at once teet all joyous spontancity fade and perish.

The house may be near and clean, but it has no "atmosphere." The house may be near and clean, but it has no "atmosphere." The house may be near and clean, but it has no "atmosphere." The house may be near and clean, but it has no "atmosphere."

open fire, no book or magazine or growing plant or flowers. The hostess has no thoughts or interests; she is metallic, without real cheer and magnetism. Her family prefer going other places for their card games or visits.

THERE is, on the other hand, a jo-I vial enough woman, but one who is but their bias cut distinterial to work on. The unselfish, affectionate woman always has existed and always will exist. Likewise the lazy, whining one, appropriating everything to herself. A haren girl may be selfish and mean and spiteful, or she may be gentle and thoughful of others. So may the mother of a large family, scrubbing floors and exhausting herself, be querulous or kindly. Time affects us but little; geography or race but little. so restless as to communicate her roving nervousness to every one. She is never soothing ministrations.

WE DO not keep house quite as did the women of a century ago; but we do marry. How do we create homes?
Are we wise and careful in expending money? Do we think of our children's give as much thought and attention to future? Or do we grab and grasp, and live in the wild flurry of the moment?
Do we seize the fashions in clothing or thought of by the community.

rette nervously, irritably.

afraid to meet it. Heavens, some of the most abominable prigs

the cause?

reminded him

The Woman's Exchange

the Scotch word for "Elizabeth" This I'm sure, because they are always glad to welcome girls who are eager to be come nurses.

Dear Madam—What are the educational requirements for a girl to enter a hospital to become a nurse? Also age? How much salary does she receive while learning? Must she buy her own uniforms? Do all hospitals take girls in this manner? If not, which ones do?

INQUISITIVE READER.

The requirements of different hospitals are going with me. The people will not are giving the affair) and two older brothers are going with me. The people will not

The requirements of different hospitals are going with me. The people will not be strange to me.

Virginia stirred uneasily.

"Is it really-like that?"

He laughed cheerfully.

Tomorrow-The Patriot

"Then you believe that---"

Paul and Virginia

By HELENA HOYT GRANT

"Class" "I'm afraid I don't grasp it, dear." Paul flicked the ash from his ciga-

PAUL eyed the notepaper upon which Mrs. Sands had written her infor-A design of a coat-of-arms, stamped in scarlet and gilt, stared couldly almost of us; you're hand-made paper.

"Humph!" he muttered, as Virginia eyed him across the a long line of ancesliving room table. "Why the cont-of- classify the much abued artistic sense "Julia was one of the Somersets before she married Jimmie."

"Must annoy Jimmie."

"I guess his grandfather came over Virginia stared at him. "Paul, for heaven's sake, don't be a

"I—a snob?"
She shrugged,
"I'm not a snob, dearest."
"Well, then, why say—"
"Only, I shouldn't think it would liminie to have his wife put a coat-of-arms, even if she is privileged to do so, on her notepaper. That's life.

ginin quietly. Paul grunted.

with his finger. straw, in modern society. Yet-there's to

"Oh, well," he said uncomfortably.
"It's something that one shouldn't really talk about. Birth-and that sort of Virginia smiled.

"It is a thing one may think about."
Paul regarded the glowing end of his cigarette soberly.
"I wonder," he said.

"Meaning—"
What's the difference—the grades, blushed happily, the standards, the refined strata-of means, for that is my name, and tell me where did it first originate?

Tell them, after this, when they ask

Training for a Nurse

Things You'll Love to Make

Ornamented Coat

ELSPETH.

Dear Madam—What are the educational requirements for a girl to enter a hospital to become a nurse? Also age: whether it would be proper in 1-27.

When designers or those who "design their own clothes" run out of new ideas in line or style there is still a chance and distinctive note in a new be cut on the same simple lines that all their other frocks have had, but the difference comes in in the sleeve -nowadays you can have any kind of sleeve you want, provided it is novel. This very open type, that gives a threecornered effect, is something entirely new. It is cut straight, but the curved seam which holds it to the wnist gives it the circular look, The pieces edged with loops of the material that trim the skirt are first cousins to panels, guishes them

A NEW KIND

OF SLEEVE

"The Marriage Gambler"

By HAZEL DEVO BATCHELOR Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Company

Carol Rathbourne marries Nick and although she had nerved herself Tracy scithout loving him in the least, for the reason that she can-not bear to see him ruin his life not bear to see him ruin his life through his infatuation for Daisy (astleton, of "The Jolly Revelers." Nick suspects the truth, and because he is madly in love with Carol, is miserable. Carol, too, is restless and unhappy, and seeks diversion everywhere. She is asked to take part in a play, and Jervis Britton is asked to play opposite her. Carol does not know the man, but his name has a queer fascination for her.

CHAPTER XXVIII

dividual ideals; they classify the much abued artistic sense with worthlessness.

They point to the dollar sign and say,
truculently, 'That's my ancestor.''

"Well?"

The feedom. This was the first time she had ever gone anywhere without Nick.

She felt like a girl again, accountable
to some yellow page in a Revolutionary War record and show that some obscure

CHAPTER XXVIII

Jervis Britton

IN THE taxi going over to Grace
Marriott's Carol felt a strange sense of freedom. This was the first time she had ever gone anywhere without Nick.

She felt like a girl again, accountable
to no one for her actions, and her spirits leaned high.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Jervis Britton

IN THE taxi going over to Grace

Marriott's Carol felt a strange sense
of freedom. This was the first time she had ever gone anywhere without Nick.

She felt like a girl again, accountable
to no one for her actions, and her spirits leaned high.

And Carol turned the pages curiously.
She was anxious to know what kind on a new thing the place of the girl to talk about beauty. "Handsome's Sympathizer" must be a very cute doll. And how does he know the girls all filtr with him? Maybe they were winking at some other person.
I vould suggest that you do not publish the letters of all conceited people that think they are handsoms.
Cynthia, this is my first letter to your valuable column, so please let me see it in print.

"And. of course I am to be without by the mark think they are handsoms.

"You're to have the part of the wife.
Carol, driven by hembushand who thinks of nothing but business, into an affair with another man."

"And. of course I am to be in the heard
the girl to talk about beauty.

The girl to talk about beauty.

That's my accounts be a very cute doll. And how does he know the girls all filt with him?

I would suggest that you do not publish the letters of all conceited people that think they are handsoms.

Cynthia, his is my first letter to your valuable column, so please it in print.

"And. of course I am the with a to some yellow page in a Revolutionary to no one for he War record and show that some obscure its leaned high.

great-great-grandfather contributed a hundred silver shillings to the good of She felt as though she were out adventuring, and the thought drove the color into her face and made her eyes When she entered the Marriott library she had never been so beautiful. Paul shringged.

"Of course, I see it every day of my who rose to his feet with the others at lutely turned away. her entrance was conscious of a sudden stic of his bulses.

"It may amuse Jimmie," said Vir-Paul pulled himself upright in the So this was the girl they had told comfortable chair. "Of course it's nonsense—this sort all a boast, a claim for class distinc. life, running over with spirits. "Of course it's nonsense—this sort all a boast, a claim for class distinc. life, running over with spirits. The thing." He flipped the elegant crest tion, privilege, special privilege. Hon- who could give herself atterly to the Tom "Don't amount to a estly, hon, it makes me just as angry society. Yet—there's to see a red and gold device like man she loved. He was addenly interval to see a red and gold device like this—" and an eloquent finger indicated the Sands device, "as it does to at one shouldn't really to the because of the money he has."

Tom Seeley got up and crossed over man she loved. He was addenly interval to Carol, who turned to him gayly. She had known Tom for years, and she drawn into this thing. Women was absolutely at ease, with him. It was a relief to be able to give him her about the for the fact that he found most of them top because of the money he has." too easy. He saw through their small those compelling gray eyes that drew subterfuges too soon; he rarely met a her so relentlessly. "All boasting is-ah-evil," Virginia woman who was able to withstand him.
What he wanted was the thrill of the Tomorrow—Two Men and a Woman "Yes, all but a fellow who can boast chase, the knowledge that his quarry he's married to the most wonderful girl was wary and accustomed to the points "Yes, all but a fellow who can boast of the game, and he was not at all Panel of Lace Trims she chided him. But she averse to having a flirtation with Carol Tracy if she happened to appeal to his fastidious taste. With the eyes of every one in the room upon them. Jervis Britton advanced to meet Carol. She was con-scious of a pair of piercing gray eyes. eyes so clear in color that they almost

Meaning of Name

To the Editor of Woman's Page:

Dear Madam—Mostly every time I am introduced to any one I have to give my first name. Now, this is what I want to know: After I tell them my name they always ask me what it means and, of course, I have to say I don't know. Can you tell me what Eispeth means, for that is my name, and tell definite information about the questions seemed blue, set in a strangely fascinating weather-beaten face. His hair was seemed blue, set in a strangely fascinating weather-beaten face. His hair was seemed blue, set in a strangely fascinating weather-beaten face. His hair was brushed carelessly back from his forehead.

Nick's hair was sleek and dark, and when he smiled he twisted his mouth a little. It gave him a queer faun-like approximate one is forty dollars a little. It gave him a queer faun-like school education in order to study to school education in order to study to the moment that she stood there, her You see, the best thing to do would be to choose the hospital at which you wish to take your training, and then either write or go there yourself to find Tell them, after this, when they ask out the special rules applying to it you what your name means, that it is They will take a cordial interest in you.

The Question Corner

Today's Inquiries . What department of the famous Kew Gardens is in charge of a woman. Miss Wekefield, and what is the valuable work she performs? For milady's desk, describe a paperweight that is adequate and at the same time extremely dainty. Describe a convenient device that will water potted plants in just the right way.

When a boy is forty-seven inches tall, what should be weigh; what should a girl of this height weigh? In what striking fashion is a frock for afternoons made?

6. Describe a raincoat in which smartness is added to practica-

Yes, You Can Do This

Since you are going with the rest of your family, and since they are anxious to have you go, I see no reason why you should not attend the banquet. I'm sure you will enjoy it, and knowing the people who are to be there will make it all the nicer for you.

All Right to Go

Hanger To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam—Being a daily reader of our column, I get quite a lot of helpful

What I would like to know is this: Can any one living outside of Philadel-phia send work to the Woman's Ex-change, at 114 South Seventeenth street. change, at 114 South Seventeenth street, or is it necessary to call in person? It would be quite a help if I could send things by mail.

I crochet, knit, tat, bead and embroider, also do quite a lot of sewing.

I would like to know, too, what would be nice to have for refreshments in the afternoon at a sewing circle.

MRS D. E. J. If you like an ORNAMENTED COAT HANGER, and most women do, make the one here described. Use an ordinary wire hanger. Wind around it worsted ribbon or raffia in any color that harmonizes with the color scheme of your room. Then weave pieces of the material used across the ends of the hanger. Join to the top a bunch of slik or crocheted worsted flowers. These can conceal small sachet bags. A set of ORNAMENTED COAT HANGERS I akes a sweet gift for a bride's shower.

FLORA.

Since it would be so much easier for you to send the articles you wish to sell at this place, instead of calling there in person, you could do this, and inclose postage for their return in case they are not accepted. You see, you will only be sending samples this first time. You could have tea and several kinds of sandwiches, with oliver and nuts, at your sewing circle meeting. Minced ham, mixed with a tiny bit of chill sauce, makes a good spread for a sandwich, and chopped eggs and mayon-maise is another one.

Yesterday's Answers 1. Mrs. Mary Pearl Riddle is to hold the interesting Government position of chief inspector of weights and measures in Indian-2. Low clusters of white spruce and ground juniper will keep outside window-boxes filled in an extremely attractive way in winter

Twelve small white geere going round and round in a character-istic manner fashion a quaint and unique fruit dish.

The correct weight for a boy forty-six inches tall is forty-nine and five-tenths pounds; for n girl the same height, forty-eight and five-tenths pounds. A fascinating combination of colors in a silk sports scarf consists of several double stripes of brilliant blue and black on a shining tan background. Brown duvetyn, with a checker-board design of satin woven into it makes a good-looking handto this meeting, she was aware that her heart was beating up in her throat, and that she was absurdly shaken, when she finally turned away and dropped gracefully into one of the big easy chairs.

Although she did not look in his direction again, she felt his eyes upon her from time to time. She was conscious of him even when she took part in the discussion of the play that followed, and because he had this amazing effect discussion of the play that followed, and because he had this amazing effect upon her she forced herself to be unusually gay.

Copies of the play were distributed, and Carol turned the pages curiously. She was anxious to know what kind of the girl to talk about beauty. "Handsome's Sympathizer" must be a very

"And, of course, I am to have the part of the other man," said Jervis Britton in his curiously deep voice.
"At least I hope I am; the role of the husband doesn't appeal to me very strongly."

Carol felt that his eyes were drawing hers, but she kept her face resolutely turned away.

They Quarrel

They Quarrel

They Quarrel

They Quarrel

They Quarrel

Firmness of character is one of those points which you may judge from the shape of the head, or rather from the development of one part of it.

It's that part in the top of the head, just back of a vertical line drawn uping his religion. He has told me ward from the ear.

er entrance was conscious of a sudden draw of his pulses.

So this was the girl they had told limits was cold and unapproachable? This the other man, and Tom Secley will play the husband. The minor parts any possible way I could get the baby for myself? For I know it would kill me to go without him. Please try to help me. BLEEDING HEART. "I don't know what to think. It's radiant, beautiful woman, vibrant with play the husband. The minor parts il a boast, a claim for class distinct life, running over with spirits! She are as follows," and Grace read the list

Velvet Gracefully

By CORINNE LOWE It's all turned around nowadays. Instead of being lavender and old lace, we incidentally chil have old lavender and lace. The fact also be ordered. of it is that the lavender or manyewhichever you prefer to call it-which last summer swayes the affections of about is the—or are the—towels. They Paris and to a great extent dominated are made in Ireland, and are real linen.

our own selection is not nearly so They are nice, smooth towels of very good quality, and are especially priced Lace, on the contrary, is constantly Lace, on the contrary, is constantly appearing in new forms. Among the striking novelties are the wool laces which the smartest designers are now applying to cloth frocks, particularly to those of navy surge. This wool lace, dyed the color of the costume china doll with bewitching hat. Atand usually revealing some vivid tint in contrasting fabric underneath, is tremendously effective, and by the time pring is here we shall probably see much of it.

Meanwhile all sorts of frocks are being trimined with lace. Here black velvet shows a front panel of ecru of the newer toilet accessories and is most decorative. The price is $3. weave punctuated with velvet-covered buttons and flanked by black silk braid, the latter also edging the sleeves. For names of shops address Woman's Page Editor or phone Walnut 3000 or Main 1601 setween the hours of 9 and 5.

There's Something About a Voice That Gives Away It's Owner's Type

If It Is Too Sweet to Suit the Character of the Person Who Uses It You Can Tell the Truth Before You Know Her

VOICES are often like the shadows of coming misfortunes—they give advance notice of the characters of their owners.

Did you ever try to size up a person

Did you ever try to size up a person

I wonder whether telephone girls don't learn to know the kindly char-acter from the mean one by the voice it tween words, give her away every time.

She will have to bluff that away and talk out sharp and short if she is applying for any work!

THE woman who has nothing behind her rather pretty face except some rather pretty thoughts about rather pretty subjects may prattle along as fast as her tongue can carry her.

She may think she has deceived people into conditions. ple into considering her a wise woman, But, ch, that dull voice, that lack of resonance and depth—it's just like a flabby handshake! "strive-to-please" voice may show one of two characters.

Sometimes you can scarcely tell, over the telephone, whether your grocer or your butcher is just dramming up trade or is really taking an interest in your

But sconer or later a shade too much enthusiamn will creep in, if he is acting the "kind-hearted butcher man, wip-ing his hands on his showy apron, the

By CYNTHIA

A Good Wish

NINETEEN TWENTY-TWO.

Dear Cynthia-I read your column very day and find it very interesting, every day and find it very interesting, so I take the liberty of saying a few words about "Handsome's Symputhizer." I really don't see how that fellow can

Did you have any ante-nuptial agree-

Another Fine Letter

Adventures With

a Purse

difficulty will be in deciding on one par-ticular color from the many beautiful is the powder puff lady. She either blue, pink or, yes, lavender, I think. This squat little figure is one

What to Do

Please Tell Me

selling the meat and butter and eggs that he deals in, the friendly interest won't be overdone in his voice.

It will have a quality that will give you a picture of him wearing the brim of last year's very dirty straw hat neter from the mean one by the voice it carries about?

The tone and placing of the voice have little to do with this showing of character.

A woman with a beautiful character may have a hoarse, harsh voice—but there will be a mysterious something about it that will let you know that you can trust her.

The girl who is afraid of herself and everything else may have a deep voice or a high one—but her hesitating sentences, her carrying on of the tone between words, give her away every time.

The girl who is afraid of herself and everything else may have a deep voice of a high one—but her hesitating sentences, her carrying on of the tone between words, give her away every time.

when it is raised in "talking shop."

This comes from a pride that is perfectly justifiable and pardonable, but you don't want to make the mistake of starting an argument with that kind of voice.

You won't win. There's the conceited voice, the Smart Alec voice, the tense, nervous voice of the overworked person who doesn't have o be so overworked. There's the drawl of the dreamer, the drone of the mercenary, the droop of the him or her who "enjoys poor health" or

BUT beware of the sweet smoothness of voice which betrays the tightlipped lady who wants what she wants when she wants it—and not a second Don't give it a chance to slip off its edges.

Sometimes we call that mysterious something which reveals real character through a voice "sincerity."
What about your voice?

you share that moment with? That is what I mean by isolation.

It is good to have the right kind of loneliness. There is a certain divine loneliness that only God's presence can fill. One only offers thought to other men after it is born in solitude.

But is seems selfish to you to remain apart. Emerson says: "Those who live to the future must always appear selfish to those who live to the present."

to the future must always appear selfish to those who live to the present."

There is too much in life to label anything "this" or "that." Would you have all so plain, so obvious, so easy? That would be to rob life of its charm. Life is an adventure. We all live and see it in different ways. That is the joy of friends—that together they can compare their experiences, their joys and mutual understandings. Cynthia-To Twenty-one and wigh that all girls were just like you. Scores "Handsome's Sympathizer" can compare their experiences, their joys and mutual understandings.

It is humanly possible to be lured aside. Even the strong and great have sometimes faltered and nearly fallen, for man has eternal need of being reminded. And it may be a friend who reminds him; it may be in a vast crowd that he finds himself or a simple violet may revive his hope. But would you deny the value of moments spent in loneliness and isolation? There are times when only then can one hear the sound of the only then can one hear the sound of the still, small voice.

"But God has a few of us whom He whispers in the ear.

"The rest may reason and welcome; 'tis we musicians know."
A LOVER OF MUSIC.

> Read Your Character By Digby Phillips

It's that part in the top of the head, E up in his religion. He has told me several times to leave him, but refuses to let me take the baby. I know we would be better off partied. Is there Lavater, one of the pioneers of characterology, was one of the first scientists to note that persons of firmness had high heads, for the development of this part of the head, of course, lends the appearance of height to it. This faculty might well be called self-possession. But in reality it amounts ment about the religion of your children? If you did and made any promises you should keep to them. Consult the Domestic Relations Court at Twenty-first and Race streets. No publicity this development of the head are stead fast, tenacious, persevering and self-controlled. They are the kind you can in a crisis. With excessive development of this Dear Cynthia—To Lover of Nature: characteristic the person becomes ob-I am wondering just where, Lover of stinate and stubborn. Lack of it pro-Nature, you found that note of longing duces the character we call fickle and to much more than this.

Nature, you found that note of longing duces the character we call fickle and in my letter; that you felt in me a latent desire to share good times.

No, you may have found any longing in my letter, but certainly not that one.

My life is not lived by force of circumstances, but lived as nearly as possible after a certain ideal of what I want to be. I would not drop all I have taken trouble to check up on them, all have high beads.

pains to gather.

I am not lonely. You speak of friends.

I know the joy of the lovellest kind of friendships, Lover of Nature. I do not belittle that.

You have a lovely faith in mankind. I appreciate your fine feeling. But unless you associate with people who share with you, or you with them, the fine emotions of life, there is a danger in closeness. You have a danger in closeness. You high heads. Tomorrow-Mathematical Ability.

WHAT'S WHAT By HELEN DECIE

Now here is a real find. I know you will agree with me. There is a place I know where you can buy made-to-order sweaters. You choose your wool from a most entrancing host of lovely colors. In fact, your real difficulty will be in deciding on one particular color from the many beautiful

There's a story of a Briton, who, after thanking an American for a friendly act, received the common American response mystified the Englishman, but supposing that his American acquaint-ance had some reason for keeping the transaction secret, he replied earnestly "I assure you that I shall never speak of it to anybody!"

The other ordinary response to there.

shades. Then you select the style sweater you want, and the sweater is made for you. Made on a machine, it is true; but so skillfully done that I will defy you to know that it is not made by hand. I know whereof I speak, for I have seen them, and I give them my heartlest recommendation. And if by hand.

I have seen them, and I give them in the seen them, and I give them in the seen them, and I give the seen the seen them.

"Twassn't worth thanks," which is aking to, but much more courteous and comprehensible than the rather meaning-less, "Don't mention it!"

For Flavoring Cakes

-guess what? Just fifty cents each tached to her waist is a box in which rests powder and puff. Her ample taf-feta skirts cover the box and are harpe's tylish hoes for tout Women

2803 W. GIRARD AVE.

The Thirteenth Street Shop Where Fashion Reigns

Special for Saturday

Street and Afternoon Dresses Effective advance season models, featuring the newest lines and smartest colors in tricotine, Canton

Extraordinary Values

crepe, taffeta and other fashionable materials.

25.00 35.00

Atlantic City Baltimore

A Week-End Sale!

Of new Cloth Dresses. fortunate purchase enables us to offer these advance Spring models at prices that make them decidedly worthy of your attention.

Of Finest Tricotine and Poiret Twill, perfectly tailored. A variety of original models quite up to the "Millard" standard which demands perfection.

$25 and $29.75

Advance Spring

Millinery In all the new high shades

Specials for the week-end

$5 to $10

1337 PHILADELPHIA S. 13th St.

Chestnut St. Boardwalk Shop-Atlantic City-Brighton Block

A CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF T

ASCO

It's Worth Saving

Asco Coffee is a typical example of how our Producer-to-Consumer Plan enables us to give our customers high quality merchandise at our well-known low

Asco Coffee is a combination of highgrade coffees from the best producing centres in the tropics. An idea of its quality may be had from the fact that coffees of the same high grade are selling elsewhere at 40c and 45c per lb.

BUT—on account of our close connections with the sources of supply and our enormous buying power, we are able to effect many economies in its handling. These savings we pass on to our customers by selling Asco Coffee at 25c per lb. instead of 40c or 45c.

ASCO Coffee

"You'll taste the difference!"

Sold only in Asco Stores, located all over Phila. and throughout Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland